How can our researchers help your organisation?

Are you a charity, business, school, church, campaign group or other organisation in need of research to support your work?

Researchers at Royal Holloway conduct research and provide expertise to a wide variety of external partners.

The Community Research Hub is a pilot scheme investigating whether we've the capacity to expand on those research partnerships. If you need some information or research conducted, get in touch to register your interest and we'll try to find a postgraduate student or academic to match your needs (usually on a voluntary basis for registered charities).
